THE NEWS

After almost a year of researching and collecting good practices in intergenerational education, we are proud to share this first result of the project with our community of adult educators through the "Learn to Learn" platform: <https://trainingclub.eu/age/>

The platform contains more than 100 good practices of intergenerational co-learning in English, Spanish, Greek, Polish and Romanian, and a forum to exchange comments on our collection of practices or other issues related to lifelong learning at international level.

The Learning Age project also aims to improve the training offered by adult education centers through innovative strategies that invite participation in training based on the methodology of intergenerational learning.

WHAT'S NEXT

The next step of the project AGE will focus on intergenerational workshops about new technologies. The workshops will result in the development and production of educational video materials. The effects are coming soon.
